Developed Animexz, an anime clothing store, using HTML, CSS, Node.js, Express.js, and MongoDB. Key features include JWT-secured user authentication, a shopping cart, product management, and an admin panel for inventory and user account management. The site is responsive, thanks to Bootstrap, and efficiently manages data with MongoDB, showcasing my full-stack development skills.

is a modern movie ticket booking platform built using the MERN stack, designed to offer a seamless and user-friendly experience. It features Google Authentication for easy login, along with secure JWT-based authentication for users, theater owners, and admins. The platform includes a dynamic notification system to keep users updated and a real-time chat application for communication. A digital wallet system enables users to manage balances, while integrated payment gateways like Razorpay and PayPal ensure secure transactions. The application also provides customizable seat layouts for theaters, offering an intuitive and responsive interface optimized for all devices.
